

TIPS FOR RECRUITING OTHER MEMBERS

An organized and dedicated team is essential to the success of your service project. The more time you spend recruiting the right members and getting them engaged and organized, the better your team will work together.

Clubs have found the following strategies useful to recruit project participants:

▶ Hosting Info Sessions

Your service project gives you and your fellow Club members a great opportunity to learn about project management and build job skills while making a social impact. But it's a commitment that shouldn't be taken lightly. Hosting an introductory info session gives you a chance to educate your peers about the service project and all that would be required of them.

▶ Posting Flyers

The use of flyers and information sessions is a good way to reach out to peers who may not know about, or think they can help with, your project. You want team members with a number of skill sets and personalities, including those who may not be the most obvious or outspoken leaders. A flyer may be just what is needed to attract the attention of quieter members. (Sample flyers follow this section.)

▶ Targeting Specialists

Your team will need members of all talents – artists to design flyers and logos, tech savvy individuals to help with social media, people to organize and public speakers. As you develop your team, try to include members who will bring a number of different skill sets and personalities to the table.

What is the Great Futures Teen Challenge?

Boys & Girls Club of America national program sponsored by Microsoft.

Teens from all across the country choose a social issue and develop a business plan to come up with a solution. Participate in monthly conference calls with West Coast Teams to discuss progress and share ideas. Team King County has selected to address human trafficking.

Opportunity for leadership and civic engagement. Network and develop entrepreneurial skills with business leaders (like Microsoft), community organizations and teens from all over the country.

GREAT FUTURES CHALLENGE

GREAT FUTURES START HERE.

Five outstanding leaders are wanted to help make the world a better place through social entrepreneurship. Pick a local or global issue and create an on going solution using video and the web to spread the message and influence people to do good within our community.

The South San Francisco Boys & Girls Club team will meet once a week to determine the project, goals, create media and meet with other clubs via Skype to discuss progress and ideas. Successful participants will earn / receive Best Buy or Target gift cards for their participation in the project.
